EXCITING MEETING

Held on Monday to Authorize the Taking of Census of Blairmore—Only Two Voted.

TWO CHAIRMEN APPOINTED

Louie Theobald Amused Them All—He Did Not Own Property but He Paid the Taxes

A meeting of unusual interest, one that was full of mirth and extremely amusing from start to finish, was held in the old post office building on Monday evening last. This meeting was the result of notices issued some time ago calling for a meeting of the ratepayers for the purpose of having the census of Blairmore taken.

Sharp at twenty-three minutes past eight o'clock, much to the amusement of many and the great delight of a few, Mr. Louie Theobald rose from his seat and informed those present, who by the long waiting had grown impatient, that they should elect a chairman and proceed with the meeting. It was no use wasting time, declared Mr. Theobald. Mr. Thomas Kennedy, after viewing the crowded audience and being favorably impressed with the previous speaker's eloquence, proposed that Mr. "Cecile" be nominated Chairman, this was promptly seconded by Mr. John Fisher, and Mr. Theobald (as this is his right name) was duly elected to that important station and assumed his dignified office.

The chairman, with words that were full of meaning, thanked the audience for the unbounded confidence that they had in him and for this mark of esteem and approval. "I want the meeting to be quiet, regardless of creed, color, politics and sex," declared the chairman. "I am here tonight in the interest of the town of Blairmore; in the interest of this community and the universe at large." Here the quietude of the evening was broken and the chairman was little disturbed by some "greasy fingers" who allowed his pipe to fall upon the floor. The audience grew indignant at that careless individual and threatened to tar and feather the next person who dared to interrupt the chairman and otherwise disturb the peace and harmony of that vast gathering. Mr. Theobald, with his controlling influence, appeased the audience and addressing the person who was the means of that disturbed, ruffled and agitated state said: "You must either keep quiet or get out. You may have a little of the Irish blood in you but I will not tolerate any more of your confounded nonsense or 'bulltalkativeness.' (Hear, hear) With this, the person spoken to made a hasty exit through a hole in the floor and the chairman resumed his seat on the stove amidst an ovation which caused the flies to leave their winter haunts and buzz around in wonderment and which caused the moving pictures to dance on the curtain in the adjoining building.

Here and There

Antoine Ernest Monis is the new premier and minister of the interior of France.

The Macleod Presbytery, in session last week end, by a vote of eight to one, declared in favor of church union.

At Calgary, on Friday last, John Fick was found guilty of murdering Tucker Bench on May 21st, 1910, at Gladys, and was sentenced to be hanged at Calgary on April 18th next. T. M. Robertson, the self-confessed murderer's case will be heard later.

Bill Miner, the notorious train robber was arrested at Gainesville, Georgia, on Thursday last. He is one of the suspects in a train robbery which occurred at White Sulphur, on Feb. 18. He was sentenced to life imprisonment several years ago at Vancouver for robbing the Dominion Express on the C. P. R. In March, 1908, he escaped from the New Westminster prison by digging through the walls surrounding the prison brickyard. He may be taken to Kingston after being tried in the White Sulphur case.

Maybe the editor does not belong to your church or lodge or agree with you politically, says an exchange, but he is doing a lot more than you have dreamed of doing to keep your town on the map. And he can't keep it in glowing colors and buy Venetian red to do it with forever, unless he is a man of an independent fortune. It's the right sort he won't ask you to subscribe or advertise unless you get 100 cents to the dollar, but he can sing the town's virtues in a much clearer tenor if his advertising columns are well filled, and the editors occasionally help him by telling him the news instead of criticizing him or trying to take business away from him because he does not happen to see things as some of them do.

Mrs. D. Welsh, mother of C. A. Welsh, manager of the champion lacrosse players of the world, died at New Westminster, B. C., last week. It was our good fortune to have known the late Mrs. Welsh and we sympathize with those who mourn their loss. Those human ties cannot be severed without a pang. Yet in such a death there is really no cause for grief. Her work was done and well done. She lived nobly and died peacefully. The stern Reaper found her, "as a shock of corn, fully ripe for the harvest." After a long, busy and useful life of 69 years, she died as she had lived—honored, trusted and loved. She reared her own monument while she lived in the hearts of all who knew her. Her life was completed, it work all done and well done constitutes completion.

Another Store Building

W. J. Budd has just awarded the contract for the erection of a business building on Victoria Street to Fraser & Sinclair. The building will be on the east side of the store occupied by C. Hiscocks & Co and will be twenty-five feet wide, forty-five long, two stories and will have a large basement.

Will Celebrate the 12th of July

Wellington Lodge, No. 2224, Loyal Orange Association, has decided to hold a big celebration at Blairmore on July 12th, next. Invitations will be extended to the Coleman and Hillcrest lodges to be present and to participate in what promises to be the greatest public demonstration ever given in The Pass. We understand that a committee has already been appointed to look after this celebration and to make all necessary arrangements for this event.

SANATORIUM NOW OPENED

And Is Ready for Business—It is Strictly First-Class—One of the Best in Canada

IS A CREDIT TO THIS TOWN

Erected at Famous Sulphur Springs and is Owned by the Canadian Coal Consolidated, Limited

The large sanatorium which was recently erected at the east end of Blairmore by the Canadian Coal Consolidated, Limited, throws its doors open to the public today.

The building is one hundred and fifty feet long, seventy-five feet wide, with a twenty-five foot centre front extension, it is three stories and has a full size basement. It is erected near the famous sulphur springs where a continual flow of the best sulphur water that has yet been found in Canada, so declare experts, oozes from the ground.

These springs are known almost all over the continent and the news that a large and first-class sanatorium has been erected near those springs, will be gladly received by thousands who are suffering from rheumatism, sciatica, stiff joints, rheumatism, contracted chords and many other such ailments, and who have long waited to have their troubles removed like Naaman of old when cured of his leprosy by the wonderful healing powers of the river Jordan.

The Canadian Coal Consolidated have been fortunate in securing the services of Mr. P. E. Gimen as manager, and Mr. D. P. Paterson as secretary, of their sanatorium. Mr. Gimen was formerly manager of the Princess hotel in Paris, one of the leading hotels in France, while Mr. Paterson has had considerable experience in this line.

On the first floor is a large rotunda, nicely furnished in oak, early English style. All the chairs are upholstered, with leather covered seats. The open fire place has a very striking appearance and is very neatly and strongly constructed. The dining room, which is in the west end of first floor is very spacious and has a seating capacity of over one hundred. This room is also furnished with upholstered chairs which, with the tables, are in early English finished oak. There are also two suits on this floor. These suits have each got a bedroom, sitting room, bathroom and are furnished in mahogany and early English oak. In the kitchen is every convenience for those who work. On the second floor are twenty-four bedrooms all beautifully furnished in early English oak as is also the large ladies' parlor. On the third floor are thirty-five bedrooms. In the basement is the bar which is very handsomely furnished in mahogany. Close to the bar-room is the liquor store. There are four bedrooms in the basement. There are also six tub and two shower baths connected up with the sulphur springs and with the ordinary water, hot and cold. In the basement are

The furniture, which is of the very best, was supplied by the Crow's Nest Pass Hardware. It is the intention of the directors to not call it the Maurice Tilley Sanatorium but to change it to some other name. The "Rocky Mountain Sanatorium" is considered by many to be a very suitable name but as yet no name has been definitely decided on.

THE TEMPTER

Adam Didn't Wait For Eve to Offer Him the Apple.

By KEITH GORDON.

The girl on the porch laid her book face downward beside her, a faint, skeptical smile visible about her mouth.

"How do you go about it?" was the question that her eyes asked of the radiant landscape. "It's all very well to say that a woman, if she has not a bump upon her back, may marry whom she will, but how would she go about it?"

The scratching of a match broke the stillness, and her meditations were suddenly precipitated from the general to the concrete. She glanced where a man's form bulged in one of the huge wicker chairs. With his hand forming a screen he was lighting a fresh cigar, seemingly oblivious to everything in life except that and a journal on engineering which lay in his lap.

He was her brother's best friend, and she had known him for years, not with much satisfaction. It must be confessed, since he was notoriously a "man's man," living in a man's world and regarding the rustle of feminine skirts with something of the same feeling that he did the turning of a mousetrap.

But he was good to look upon—so good that a sudden quietude took hold through her heart at his indifference. It assumed the likeness of a personal affront, a sort of insult to her sex. It would never do, if some girl should just make up her mind to marry him and do it, too, before he knew what he was about.

Meanwhile he was reading the match and picked up the journal again as impudently as if he were alone, a pair of half-indignant eyes watching him with a combination of pride and amusement.

It certainly would never him right, her thoughts ran on, if some lady should just wind him round and round her finger, make him fetch and carry at her beck and call, reduce him to a perfect mummy of civility. Something in her steady gaze caused him to move uneasily, then look up.

"Did you speak?"

He had the perfidious manner of a person who knows he must keep guard over himself or he will be guilty of some reminiscence. A heroic resolution to do his duty was visible in his face.

"No," she drawled, "I didn't speak. But if you don't mind very much I think I will." "I'd like to ask you, for instance, if you ever have a ladies' day?"

"A ladies' day?" he repeated helplessly, shaking his head in bewilderment with a characteristic movement, while his tormentor watched him as if he had been some sort of specimen that she had impaled upon a pin. Then a light dawned upon him.

"You mean such as they have at the club—a day when the place is given up to your sex and other matters go to the wall? Well, no. I don't know that I ever had."

"Don't you think it is time?" she ventured.

"Possibly," he admitted, but he still held the journal in a way that suggested a willful unconquerable desire to return to the subject of his own engineering problems.

"I have always considered Adam weak, very weak," she was evasive answer. "Men aren't like that nowadays."

At these banal words a resolution that had been taking form in her mind became full fledged. She looked at him with the sense of a mission. Her neglected sex should find an avenger in her.

"You think you wouldn't have eaten of the apple, then?"

There was a new note in her voice. It was at the same time a challenge and an appeal.

As if it were something absolutely new it came to his mind that girls were delicate, helpless creatures, and a wave of tenderness for the sex swept over him. Still he was very positive that he wouldn't have eaten the apple, and something in the soft, half-smiling, dependent way in which she looked at him caused him to explain at great length why.

"Has talked fifteen minutes by the clock," she was thinking in high glee, but outwardly she was all deferential, honey-sweet attention.

"I'm sure he wouldn't have yielded if he'd been like you?" she was earnest comment as he finished speaking, and at the words she was, for the first time, a pleasant expansiveness, a yearning sense of satisfaction as delightful as it was unusual. It was as if he were growing taller, more manly, more reverently strong before her very eyes.

"Go back to your reading. I'm not going to bother you another minute," she jumped up and, laying her hand on his arm, finished indignantly: "You don't mind my bothering you, do you? A girl gets so tired of women's hand that she takes a plunge in a cold stream!" And she vanished into the house and scurried to her room, where she threw a shawl over her head and, in a mirror, with the remark, "You're doing well for a beginner, my love."

Down on the broad piazza the man had returned to the closely printed columns before him, but after a half hour he gave up.

"To state," he murmured, throwing the paper on the table, "Wonder where she goes. Never before realized how interesting she is—for a girl. Had I ever had a ladies' day? Ugh! That was funny!" And he smiled at the recollection of it.

For the next two or three days she avoided him as much as possible.

"I must give him plenty of life," she decided craftily, "and never let him suspect that she's taken him so much."

On the third day he proposed a long tramp to her.

"You don't want a silly thing like me," she protested, with modest self-deprecation. "I can't talk about bridges and buttresses and caissons and all those interesting things that you know about. I shall only bore you."

"What was it you said the other day about the creature that tempted Adam?" was his question. "Perhaps I want to take up a new line of study."

"That must make him think I was the most dependent thing that ever lived," she confessed shamelessly to her mirror that night. "My mind little else but to get over the fact that I was without him, and as for climbing fences—"

She went off into a peal of laughter as she remembered the selection. "I had been about her getting over a fence that was in their way—and she who could turn a handspike as well as either of her brothers!"

"Of course I couldn't do it if I really liked him," she murmured. Then she gazed in the mirror and her face quickly. "I'm just going to give him a much needed lesson, you know," she went on. "This time the girl looked into her eyes for a moment. After that she threw herself on the bed and buried a hot face in the pillows.

As the weeks went by the startling conviction that there were no men in the world who never bored him, never made him long to escape and get back to his own kind, came to be a certainty to the man. With the knowledge of this knowledge the world seemed a brighter, livelier place.

The idea of marriage, which had hitherto seemed remote and almost suicide, came and lodged within him as if it were an old friend. He thought, with some scorn, of his former views.

They were standing under the big apple tree in the back garden. From the ground she picked up an apple, round, smooth apples and began to eat it. Something in the action brought back to him the conversation they once had about Adam, and he wondered how he could ever have been so cross, so dense. He held out his hand.

"Please, Eve," he beseeched.

"But you are the like Adam," she began archly.

"No," he said meaningly. "He wanted temptation. I don't intend to wait."

And that night she whispered to the girl in the mirror, "What Thackeray says is true!"

The Dispute.

A rabbit went out walking one day, and when he came home he found his burrow occupied by a stranger. He was greatly astonished at finding a stranger in his house.

"See here, Madam Weasel," he said, "what are you doing here? This is not your home. Please get out of my burrow."

"Four burrow, indeed?" cried the weasel. "I'll do no such thing. I am perfectly at home."

"Well now," said the rabbit gently, "take the deuce to Grimskin!"

Now, Grimskin was a cat, the judge of all contrivances that came up in the forest, and so the weasel could not be so at ease as he was in the rabbit suggested. They set out together and soon arrived before the judge.

"Come near to me, my children," said Grimskin; "I am dead."

They obeyed, not dreaming of any harm that might come, and the cat, casting out a clawed foot at each side, gripped them both and settled the dispute by eating them one after the other.

Moral—People often rule themselves by law. It is better to come to an agreement out of court—French of Perria.

Loafing.

"Loaf and invite my soul," sang Walt Whitman in one of his "barbaric yawps" that has sounded "over the roots of the world." And it is not the best, profoundest and highest thing ever said or sung about loafing.

The soul—its life is a constant state as to have one in the real and high significance of the word—it hardly comes to our mundane aid, no matter how often we may invite it, unless we loaf. We do not in our ordinary business of living give it a chance to visit us. Like the virtues of art, it demands a large leisure and far horizon.

That is why the poets and thinkers possess "soul" and we ordinary mortals do not. Our life is too narrow, too "cabineted, cribbed, confined." Soul escapes or shuns us while we grope in our huddled and cluttered existence. We must "loaf and invite."

Loafing is good for us now and then. As a habit it is very bad, but even a good custom, as Tennyson assures us, would "corrupt the world" were it not for wholesome change and variety. And an occasional loaf, whether voluntary or enforced, may be salutary—Columbia State.

A straight line is the shortest in morals or in mathematics—Edgewood.

OLD TIME LIBRARIANS.

Spofford, Whitney and Butler Made a Famous Trio.

With Almsworth and Spofford, for fifty years librarian of congress, who died in 1908; the passing of Wentworth Sanborn Butler, for more than fifty years librarian of the New York Society Library, and of James Lyman Whitney, for forty years with the Boston Public Library, a triumvirate of old school librarians has gone.

Their environment, conditions and methods of administration have changed. In the interim, before the days of disorienting catalogues, with subjects grouped and classified, the librarian was popularly credited with carrying all the knowledge of the universe in his head, ready to impart to all comers on request.

Mr. Spofford and Mr. Butler were both born in New Hampshire and Mr. Whitney in Northampton, Mass., about a decade later. Amherst, Dartmouth and Yale contributed to their culture, and New England and the country gave them their early vigor and resourcefulness.

Mr. Butler knew the beans and the belles of New York for over twenty years. William Cullen Bryant, Gulliver C. Verplanck, Fitz-Greene Halleck and Everett C. Duyckinck drew upon his various stores of knowledge. The poets, jurists and statesmen William M. Briggs, David Dudley Field, Hamilton Fish, John Jay and Samuel J. Tilden were intimate friends and constant visitors at the society library—New York Post.

ROTARY SNOWPOWS.

These Powerful Machines Are as Big as Freight Cars.

The snowplover is a huge machine, as big as a freight car, and built of steel. On the forward end is a monster wheel with powerful blades of steel looking like snowplow blades.

On the rear end is a smaller wheel, also with powerful blades of steel. The machine is so arranged that their angles can be changed. This wheel, which is perpendicular to the track and revolves at right angles to the main wheel, can be turned to clear snow from the track or to clear a ditch or drain, also of steel and with sharp steel edges. The top of the drum is supplied with a pipe or chute.

Inside the drum is a screw-driven engine, which drives this huge fan wheel at from 100 to 250 revolutions per minute. Below the body of the plow near the track is an ice cutter, which rakes the ice before the wheels go over them and a "dangler," as it is called, designed to scrape the balk of the snow off the track itself after the fan has whittled the snow bank away and thrown the most of it to one side. Behind the snowplover are coupled from one to three or even more powerful engines, and behind these a car.

On the car are many men with shovels, for, despite its enormous power, the snowplover is not infrequently used to clear snow from the tracks of the rotary cars stuck at times and has to be ignominiously dug out!

—C. N. Claudy in St. Nicholas.

Artificial Camphor.

There is in operation in New York state an artificial camphor factory, the product of which is intended to compete in the market with the natural substance. It is maintained that it does not differ, except in the manner of its origin, from that extracted from the camphor trees of Formosa.

Artificial camphor is made from essential oils derived from turpentine. Chemically the only difference between turpentine and camphor is the possession by the latter of a certain number of atoms of oxygen which the former lacks. By chemical process the needed oxygen is supplied.

Three-fourths of the entire supply of camphor is used in the arts and one-fourth in medicine—Exchange.

Measuring Water by Sound.

An electrical device whereby a sound wave is sent to the sea bottom in relatively shallow water and upon being reflected back to the vessel is received by another part of the same apparatus has been designed in Norway for measuring the depth of the sea.

The apparatus is a continuous record in a certain depth. Several tests of the apparatus are said to prove the absolute accuracy of the device—Montreal Standard.

Amazon River Prices.

At points on the Amazon river four cents $20 a barrel. Shoes are $15 a pair and $125 a bottle 1,000 miles from Para, while for the next thousand sales up the river prices grow higher and higher. Food of all kinds, liquors and luxuries from all kinds come from this course up the Amazon.

The course up 3,000 miles of any of these rivers shows only banks and a few small settlements. The banks are for the most part low and the people are the rubber tappers. The people are the rubber tappers. The people are the rubber tappers.

Improvements in the Transatlantic railway service may make it possible for a journey round the world to be made in thirty-seven days. From London to Yokohama by way of Siberia would take two weeks. The trip across the Pacific would take twelve days, making Vancouver twenty-six days and New York thirty-seven days are allowed for the journey from New York to London by way of New York—Argonaut.

"SANDY" BARTLETT STORIES.

Late Windsor Magistrate Was a Famous Character For Many Years.

Windsor, Ont., sustained a great loss in the death, a few days ago, of "Sandy" Bartlett, who for over half a century was its police magistrate. In the history of the town he was a "boss of the town," and wherever he went in Windsor people never dreamed of questioning his authority, even though he might be dealing with matters that did not come within the range of his duties as magistrate.

He brought to bear on his work cool, calculating common sense, and often brushed aside technicalities to do justice. Many a time he imposed a fine and then promptly paid it out of his own pocket; he gave a great number of men good advice instead of a term in jail, and he would never separate man and wife if he could arrange a reconciliation.

Newspapers of Windsor and Detroit well remember "Sandy" and his advice. Some six or seven years ago, on one of the occasions when a number of them had been in police court after the session of the court, the venerable magistrate gave advice to the reporters. "You should not smoke," he said, "I had business. I never smoked in my life." Some of the reporters stuck up for their smoking, but he said, "No, it's harmful. Look at Brother William. He's just smoking himself to death—smoking himself to death."

The magistrate at that time was a bachelor and a widower. Brother William was then about 80.

Mr. Bartlett invariably stood for British law and order, and in a town which is subject to "dampings" of foreign criminals. He was decidedly severe on the latter, especially such characters as entered upon matrimonial adventures, regardless of former ties. "Sandy" was a very strict disciplinarian, and he was very strict in his dealings with the law.

There was brought before him an enterprising gentleman, who had taken a ferry from Detroit and settled in Windsor with a view to carrying "a lady of means." His ingratiating manner brought him success in his undertakings, when it was discovered that more than one wife awaited him in his line. "I am a man of some means," he said, "and I am a man of some means."

"Life became rather strenuous for the foreign gentleman, who finally found himself in the court under the searching eyes of Mr. Bartlett."

"May I go back to Detroit?" asked the gentleman of many marriages.

"After you've served a sentence here," was the smiling reply.

"This is no free country," objected the prisoner.

"Not for such as you," said the magistrate, with a grim set of his Scottish jaw.

"Well," said the dejected one persistently, as he was led away, "I want to know how soon I can get married after I am out."

But the magistrate was too disgusted at this failure to appreciate the nature of the question to make any reply.

Canadians With Mrs. Eddy.

It will be of interest to Canadians to know that two of the chief lieutenants of the Rev. Mary Baker Eddy and men who helped to make her great success, are Canadians.

One of them is Mr. J. H. Eddy, of the board, had the confidence of Mrs. Eddy, who, despite her deeper scientific attainments, was a woman of the world which made her an excellent judge of men. He was the first Canadian to be elected to the Science publications issued in Boston.

Mr. McLehane was born in New Brunswick, and he was a boy when he went to Boston. He was admitted to the Bar in Chicago. Mr. McLehane was a member of the Ontario Bar Association in 1886 and since 1907 he has been a member of the Ontario Bar Association.

Mr. Adam H. Dickey, private secretary to Mrs. Eddy, is a Canadian. He was born in Toronto, Ont., in June 28, 1864, and received his education in the model schools of that city. In 1881 he went to Kansas City, Mo., where he was converted to Christianity.

Since 1897 he has been connected with the manufacturing company and in 1899 became a Christian Science healer. He was a member of the Ontario Bar Association in 1886 and since 1907 he has been a member of the Ontario Bar Association.

Mr. Eddy summoned him to Boston three years ago and offered him the place of private secretary, which he accepted. Her last official act was to recommend his appointment to the board.

Last Session's Record.

Last session of the Ontario Legislature opened on Jan. 25, and was prorogued on March 19. The session a year ago was marked by five divisions and the passage of 168 bills. The legislation included the extension to Toronto of power to construct a tube system of railways, also the right to construct surface street railway extensions.

The passage by acclamation of the Ontario Telephone Act was one of the notable achievements of the session.

There is every indication that the session which will open soon will furnish further proof of the progressive development and public ownership policy of the Whitney administration.

Sir Charles Townshend.

Sir Charles Townshend, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia since 1907, who is one of Canada's new Knights Bachelor, was born March 28, 1844, at Amherst, N. S. He is the son of Rev. Canon Townshend, rector of Christ Church, Windsor, and was called to the Bar in 1868. He was elected M.P. for Cumberland County in 1870 and 1882. From 1887 to 1897 Sir Charles was judge of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.

Mr. R. R. Bell, of 337 Provencier Ave., St. Boniface, Winnipeg, says: "I had a sore on my finger, and it was very painful. I tried many remedies, but nothing would cure it. I then saw an advertisement for 'The Finger Cure' and bought a bottle. I used it as directed, and in a few days the sore was gone. I am now well and my finger is as good as new. ## Vaccination.

As "vaccination" is being considerably discussed just now by many in this province as well as in the province west of here, some information regarding its early use and the way it is being done in some other countries, may not be out of place.
Inoculation for small pox was first used, so far as we can learn, by the Chinese. Lockhart gives the following quotation from an old Chinese manuscript which is supposed to have been written in the eleventh century: "The ancients passed the knowledge of inoculation for small pox. It has come down to us from the reign of Chin-tung, of Ling dynasty,
and was discovered by a philosopher. When the disease broke out spontaneously it is very serious and often fatal, but when it is produced by inoculation it is usually mild and does not cause more than one death
in ten thousand cases."

"In Persia inoculation is accomplished by scratching the forearm and rubbing into the slight wound after bleeding has ceased the pulverized scurf which falls from a smallpox patient. The Ashanti negroes, according to Bowditch, inoculate in seven places in the arms and legs. The Moors practice the same method. The Siamese have the peculiar custom of blowing the scurf into the nose."

Editorial Notes

Mr. Theobald's speech is the talk of Blairmore.

There is one difference between Daniel Webster and Louie Theobald and that one is, the former did not live in the twentieth century while the latter still lives.

Bahama Islands are anxious to join Canada, and before very long they may be taken under the wing of this fair Dominion, which is the brightest national gem in the British crown.

A letter addressed "Canada, U. S. A." was recently received at Montreal from an English firm. Evidently, some of those blue bloods think that we are already annexed to the United States. That is truly a blooming, blasting crazy idea, "don-cher" know.

The B. C. Saturday Sunset says: "An old maid has just died in Duluth, who admitted that she was 100 years old. She must have been a wonderful woman, for, in all our long and varied career, we have never yet met an old maid who was more than 23 last birthday."

The latest fad, says an exchange, is to dub Mr. Rockefeller a billionaire. This is sheer nonsense. He is not a billionaire, and can never be one - a fact that becomes at once apparent if we contrast the difference between a million and a billion in seconds.
A million seconds is between eleven and twelve days; a billion seconds is over 30,000 years.
A billion is a million millions.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald said that he was surprised at Mr. Theobald for only speaking a few minutes. "Mr. Theobald," said the speaker, "is a man known throughout The Pass for his long speeches and high toned oratory, he is a man who can at times command attention and who can often influence those of his class." (Great applause and cries of "chairman,"
"chairman.")

Mr. Theobald said. "What a masterpiece of oratory!
What a magnificent speech.
What a powerful oration was that of Mr. Macdonald's. I am extremely sorry that my throat is so bad as to cause me excruciating pain and considerable discomfort whenever I speak." (A voice was heard to say "God help you-if your throat gives you a greater pain than the one you give us." But Mr. Theobald considered the source and did not think it worth while to retaliate.)

Mr. J. A. Macdonald was surprised to find that this meeting was being held in the old post office instead of in the Mercantile hall as was advertised. He would do all he could to help Blairmore along and to advance the interest of the town but he would not support anything introduced at that meeting as he thought it was not being legally held.
Many more of Blairmore's citizens who would like to have attended the meeting were not present, because, after finding out that no such meeting would be held in the Mercantile hall,
they did not know that there would be such a meeting that night.

Mr. H. E. Lyon said that the old post office was a part of the Mercantile hall and had been so ever since the first of the year, and he therefore thought that the meeting was being legally held.

There was then some doubt as to Mr. Theobald's right to act as chairman of the meeting. Of course, Mr. Theobald arose and with his usual fiery eloquence that made the room so hot as to not require any coal fire and that made frost appear on the heads of the nails, and with his weighty words which threatened to crush through the floor beneath, he explained his awkward position. He said that he had been approached by several of the most prominent citizens and had been asked to take the chair. He said that he had been told that he would make an efficient chairman and would act in that capacity to the dissafaction (or satisfaction, he said) of those present. He, thinking that the voice of those citizens were the voice of the people had finally consented to act.

Mr. J. A. Macdonald and Mr. T.
Kennedy said that Mr. Theobald was a ratepayer and was therefore the right man in the right place.

Mr. L. Dutil moved and Mr.
I. Loughhead seconded that Mr.
H. E. Lyon be chairman, Mr. Theobald said that he would vacate the position as chairman if the audience so wished it. He was willing to acquiesce to those present.

Mr. L. Dutil was elected secretary.

The following resolution, which was moved by Mr. J. Montalbetti and seconded by Mr. I. Loughhead, was then put: "That we, the ratepayers of the village of Blairmore,
in the province of Alberta, hereby authorize the village council to have the census of the said village taken with a view to having the said village incorporated into a town." This was put by Mr.
Lyon, the second chairman, and was voted on by just the mover and seconder.

The meeting broke up at 9.30

Theobald. "As it is now, it re-

Observations By

Our Aeronaut

Methinks there's going to be something doing for the ministers at either end of the trail that connects two towns east and west of Frank. Late hour trips at this season denote an amount of earnestness and the outcome is not doubtful.

The air up here is getting warmer, and it seems as though incorporation or some other warm matter is condensing at some of the bigger mining towns. We hope such material will continue to enmesh, for forty below is not pleasant for me up here.

An ardent flagellant, who purports to be all that his title warrants, stepped too far out from Coleman on Saturday night last and had to be escorted home by his better half in the waning hours of the morning. A bitten ear and a punched face are the remaining symptoms of his outing.

That short lady of Frank, who visits Coleman once in a while to see a tall gaffer there, had better keep on her gloves when out in public. I noticed Jock place the inseparable link upon her pointer Sunday night, and venture to think that if the old pals come to learn the fact there will be ructions in Maggie's home.

I don't like to tell all the interesting doings seen from our 'plane, but among others last week there were a young lady of Bellevue and a gentleman of Frank entered into an engagement on account of which wedding bells will ring out on May 1st. Another young lady of Blairmore has broken her engagement with an eastern chap and has decided to share life with a local mechanic, and the snip tial day is not far off. Another is a young gentleman of a local mine office who intends to toss copper between a young beauty of New York state and a well known grass-widow.

The rather unusual spectacle has been presented of a rather sharp decline in the approximate earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway during January, due doubtless to the smaller crop last season, while the price of the stock in the market is going up, and everybody seems bullish.

Mr. Rodolphe Forget, M. P., is organizing a bank called the Banque Generale du Canada but the word "Generale" will be dropped if a charter can be secured for one designated the Bank of Canada. Its capital will be $10,000,000 and of this amount the promoter states that French capitalists are willing to put up $7,500,000 and Canadians the balance. Mr. Forget leads the public to believe that his new bank will set the other banks a good example and that as a result there will not be such an outcry about the tight money market in future.

Taber Wins

By a score of 3 to 1 Taber defeated Coleman in a game of hockey played at the latter place on Wednesday night. The game was fast and was interesting from start to finish. It was witnessed by 212 hockey enthusiasts.

HAD THROAT TROUBLE SINCE CHILDHOOD

All Treatments Failed. Relieved by Peruna.

Mrs. Wm. Hohmann, 2744 Lincoln Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I suffered with catarrh of the bronchial tubes and had a terrible cough ever since a child."

"I would get up in bed with pillows propped up behind me, but still the cough would not let me sleep. I thought and everybody else that I had consumption."

"So reading the papers I decided to try, without the least bit of hope that I would be cured."

"I am well now and cured of a chronic cough and sore throat. I cannot tell you how grateful I am, and I cannot thank Peruna enough. It has cured where doctors have failed and I talk Peruna whenever I go, recommend it to everybody. People who think they have consumption better give it a trial."

Cured Awful Ringworm

"Well over four years ago my two little girls were taken with a dreadful scalp trouble that the doctors called ringworm. They attended the hospital as out-patients for a long time. I had to apply their ointment with a brush, giving the children frightful pain. I also had to have their heads shaved every two weeks, but they got no better under the treatment. They used to cry with the tormenting itching, and their heads were covered with a thick scurf and dandruff."

"About a year ago I determined to try the Cuticura Remedies. I used plenty of Cuticura Soap and applied the Cuticura Ointment. I used only about three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment and they were cured. Their hair is growing long and nice again. They had become so ill after their long suffering that I had to send one away to a convalescent home as soon as she was cured, but now she is home, well and strong. My younger girl was away from school nine months with the disease. I am very grateful to Cuticura for curing my children's skin. I hope other mothers will try it. The Cuticura Soap I will always use for it makes the hair so lovely."

(Signed) Mrs. Nora Emmott, 28, Leona Gardens, Brook Green, W., London.

THE INDIAN MOTHER.

Agnes Deans Cameron Writer on Women of the West.

Qualities of Kindergarten, Mothers' Meetings, or Women's Clubs, with no household column in the daily press, or "Votes for Women" in the market-place, without having heard a single sermon on the "duty of the homemaker," the Indian woman of the Canadian West and North is a faithful wife and ideal mother. Her children are taught to reverence and respect their parents, to be kindly to one another, to earn their own living by the work of their hands. They worship a Great Spirit, and look forward to a future state, sharing the belief with the rest of us that "there the good shall be happy."

In the adjustment of white burdens to red backs, the respective duties of man and wife are greatly defined, to the woman falling the heavy end of the burden. A man claims his wife when he can prove himself a mighty hunter, with skill of gun and trap sufficient to provide food for two. This is his part of the bargain, and he resolutely does no more. When bear, a moose, or a caribou, indicating the scene of the kill with broken twigs or a blood trail, the man bravely walks back to camp empty handed. Burdened as she may be by two or three children clinging to her skirt, as well as by the suspense upon her back, it is the duty of the woman to set out from camp, find the spoil and drag the quarry home by the tepee. Arrived at camp, it is she who skins the animals and dresses the flesh for food. Here, too, is the task to scrape the skin, cure it, tan it, and work it up into garments for her household.

Solomon's allusion of Mrs. Owl-plucked-of-the-eye or Mrs. Red-lick-of-the-morning, adjusted to the latitude of 70 degrees North would read, "She seeth fish and the flesh of the moose and worketh the garment with her hands; she rieth also while it is yet night and scarpeth the skins for garments."

In the building of empire on this frontier, the woman, red or white, plays her part. During the course of six weeks' journey up the Peace River in an open boat two years ago, one evening at dusk we put into the bank where the little Red River makes into the Peace, and there in the silent wilderness, 500 miles north of Tom Kerr, of the Hudson Bay Co., his Scottish wife, and their four bairns. The picture stumbled upon was a little bit of empire in the making.

There had been off all day cutting meadow-grass, and was now wending his way home with a load of it in a little cart drawn by a mangled mare. At her side frisked a foal, and two stag-hounds ran back and forward between the mare and the pack. The children bounded out to greet their father. "Oh, daddy, daddy, the red cow from over the lake is here and is far awa' on the other side of 'er burn!" Around us were cows, chickens, trust-worthy old nags, porridge for breakfast, and we heard "the tongue that Shakespeare spoke," rendered in an accent born far apace the Tweed.

Across the mouth of the Little Red River Tom Kerr has a fishing-aisne. The net yields even at that night, and they were of five different species—trout, ling, sucker, jackfish, and something which the women call "Marie." For 365 days every year this net furnishes food for the family, in summer in the flowing water, and in winter under the ice.

This is one of the most beautiful spots in the whole Northern Country. Long after Tom and Mrs. Tom are under the gowns, and the little ones possess the most complete capitalist will rear his summer villa on the site of this home of the sturdy pioneers, and there will be populous cities along the Peace.

One may not hope to write the shortest chapter in the history of empire and keep from the records the deed of a Scot. It was over a hundred years ago that Alexander Mackenzie started across the map from the Peace River pursuing his questing canoe through interior wilderness to discover, if he might, an unknown route to the Pacific Ocean.

His persevering fortitude allowed him ultimately to attain the wide Pacific sweep, to dip his brush in vermilion and write there with red letters on a black board, "Alexander Mackenzie from Canada, by land, 1781." Mackenzie was the first man to cross the continent of America from ocean to ocean north of the latitude of Mexico.

Today every nation and every tongue has its part in the growing history of Western Canada. Canada recognizes no established religion. Her proud boast is that on her fertile prairies the expatriated outcast and the religious refugee of every creed, tenet, caste, or color, can find unhindered opportunity to worship as the dictated of his conscience prompt the God of his fathers. Among the Galicians, Ruthenians, and Doukhobors, until successive harvests have furnished funds sufficient for church-building, God is supplicated in open sunlight under the incomparable sky of Canadian skies. These folk justify their open-air meetings with the argument, "God is not glorified if our people build a church, and present Him with the mortgage."—Agnes Deans Cameron in Graphic.

Just Due.

The towns of Waterloo and Berlin, Ont., are in much the same relative position as are the twin cities of North Alberta, Edmonton and Strathcona, or the twin ports at the head of Lake Superior, Port Arthur and Port William. There's some talk of Waterloo and Berlin amalgamating, and Charlie Mills, the well-known merchant and politician of Berlin, says that Waterloo's attitude concerning the proposed union is like that of a Scotch girl of whom he heard. A man whom she had known only a short time asked the Scotch girl to marry him, and she said, "I'll marry you, but I'll take a bit o' wooing first."

GOOD HEALTH FOR RUN DOWN MEN

If You Are Weak and Easily Tired Try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Anemia is a state into which one falls because of lack of blood, or because the blood is poor, weak and watery. The man or woman who has not enough blood is pale, languid, easily tired and easily depressed. As the trouble progresses other symptoms show themselves, and the life of the sufferer is one of misery. Anemia opens the door to consumption, and gives victims to all the epidemic maladies, because the whole body is weakened and unable to resist the invasions of disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best remedy in the world for the cure of anemia, and all its attendant miseries. They make the blood rich, red and pure, thus bringing health and strength to weak, despondent men and women. We do not know of a single case of anemia where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have failed to cure if given a fair trial. Mr. John Haslam, Venn, Sask., was a victim of this trouble and found new health through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says: "I was working on a railway driving a team and found myself gradually running down. I did not pay much attention to it at first, but soon I began to lose my appetite and it was a trial to get through my day's work. I got medicine from the doctor on the works, but it did not help me, and finally I got so bad I told the foreman I would have to quit. He told me not to lose hope, that he would get some medicine that would soon make me all right. That night he went to town and bought me three boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had not taken more than two boxes when I began to feel better, and after I had used five boxes I was as well and strong as ever, and could do a day's work with any man on the job. I may just add that before I began taking the Pills I was so run down that I weighed only 122 pounds, and while taking them I gained 22 pounds. I cannot say too much in favor of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and strongly recommend them to all run down men."

Mrs. Hyslop, the Dominion organizer of the W. C. T. U., was in town last week for the purpose of executing a local branch. But because it was on the same day on which the scrubbing party was to take place at the "Miner" office, the women did not get home in time to clean and prepare themselves to attend a place of worship, and consequently there is no local branch of the W. C. T. U. here.

Mrs. Hyslop, Dominion organizer for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, delivered an address in the Central Baptist church on Thursday evening last. A large crowd was present and listened attentively to what was considered the best piece of oratory ever given by a lady in that church. She dwelt at some length on the work of the W. C. T. U. and cited several instances in which that body had done considerable to raise the fallen, lighten many a heavy and sad heart and cause peace and happiness to return to their homes. During Mrs. Hyslop's stay here she organized a branch of W. C. T. U. in Blairmore.
